

Please do not modify the rules to permit cellular telephone use aboard airborne aircraft. Don't we already have enough security issues to contend with without opening up the floodgates for additional concerns. This appears to be another revenue ploy by the phone companies with minimal concern regarding air traffic safety. Why risk it?? I realize that not all planes are equipped with telephone devices, but for those that are, considering making this a more affordable option for those who find themselves "having" to be on the phone while in flight. Where have we as a society come to when we have to be on phone 24/7? Can you imagine 150 passengers on their phones, all at once, within the confines of a cabin on a plane? Everyone would be trying to talk over their neighbor just to hear their own conversation. If there was an emergency, one would not be able to hear the instructions from the pilot or the flight attendants because everyone would be too busy and too loud squawking on their phones.

Please use better judgement when it comes to this ruling and vote NOT to permit Cellular Telephone Usage aboard aircraft!!

Thank you.
